1. Mr. McCone has directed that an intensive, formal program be inaugurated immediately to impress upon all categories of Agency managers and supervisors the essential nature and significance of the behavioral and moral obligations inherent in supervisory responsibilities. A one-day program has been designed by the Office of Training to make clear the Agency's interest in better supervision of personnel, to point out some current weaknesses, and to alert all concerned to the dangers to the Agency and its mission which have resulted and can result from failures in good supervision. Specifically, emphasis is to be placed on the critical necessity for supervisors to observe impeccable standards of objectivity, integrity and impartiality in dealing with subordinates.

2. The presentations in this program will be made by senior CIA Officials, including the Director of Central Intelligence or the Deputy Director of Central Intelligence. [redacted] OTR, is organizing the program. The day's session promises to be informative, interesting, and challenging.

3. It is Mr. McCone's desire, further, that the Reorientation in Supervisory Responsibilities be attended by all staff employees who:
